Success coach advice.

Luis Quezada, success coach (Firelands ERN of Toledo, Ohio) says, "ERN® success coaches help employees create the steps and strategy to tailor goals, providing a strong foundation in proactively seeking and leveraging the resources needed to be successful. As the success coach and employee work together, a relationship develops and they discover further opportunities for growth. I've used the S.M.A.R.T. model to help others setting goals in medication and stress management, home organization, seek higher education, and creating healthy eating habits, for example. More so, this model not only encourages an action plan, but is a

Childcare Partnerships: Solutions for Workers

Your ERN® success coach is an expert at finding resources, exploring eligibility, and applying for programs. This comes in handy for employees seeking assistance with childcare! But what if childcare is hard to come by in your community or too expensive for your budget?

Finding new solutions. Employer Resource Networks® (your company is a member) work with area organizations, often thinking outside the box in making services more affordable and more available in order for workers to succeed at both work and home.

Childcare partnership example.

The Tri-share Childcare Pilot began a year ago in West Michigan. It is a program contributed in part by Michigan ERN to make childcare more affordable for struggling families. The employer, employee, and State of Michigan each pay a third of the costs. There are currently over 40 children (with a goal of 90) and over a dozen Muskegon/Ottawa County employers, including Wesco, enrolled in the program.

Peace of mind, work success.

When a challenge or barrier is removed, especially one as important as care of your child, you are better able to get to work and focus on your job. Let your success coach know your needs around childcare and they can explore centers and resources in your community. Source: ERN USA
